Located in the heart of a prestigious district, Misericórdia, its location benefits from many assets with its proximity to the Tagus River,

The Freguesia da Misericórdia, with its rich historical heritage, was once a stronghold of the upper middle class and the top of Lisbon, with the "construction of many palaces, such as the Cunhal das Bolas, Alvito, Almada Carvalhais, Marquis of Ficalho, Count of Lumiares, Marquis of Minas, Bichinho de Conta, Ludovice and Counts of Tomar, among others in the nineteenth century, the Freguesia da Misericórdia continued to bring together artists and intellectuals, who frequented its theatres and cafés. The press also moved into the space of the current Parish, occupying vacant palaces. Newspapers such as Diário de Notícias, the Lisbon Revolution, Le Monde and Le Siècle enlivened the nightlife of the area, which became more and more accessible with the new Glória, Bica and Estrela lifts

Walking through Misericórdia is like traveling back in time. Along some of the streets and inside some places, it feels like the eighteenth century. The busiest streets are bathed in the eclectic style of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

A neighborhood to live in.
